

Digicel chairman visits Port Vila

DIGICEL chairman Denis O'Brien was in Port Vila with his board for a brief visit this week.

A Digicel spokesperson said Mr O'Brien and the Board of Directors of Digicel were in Port Vila for a number of hours on Tuesday.

She said they met with the Prime Minister and had a review with the Digicel Vanuatu CEO and senior management team.

Mr O'Brien met with Prime Minister Joe Natuman - together with Digicel Pacific Region CEO Michael Murphy and Digicel Vanuatu CEO Simon Fraser.

"They discussed Digicel plans for a world class TV service for Vanuatu and ICT developments," she said.

"The Chairman had not been to Vanuatu in a number of years and told the Prime Minister he was pleased to see the level of economic progress in Port Vila, the positive impact of telecommunications had made in the daily lives of the population and on businesses – large and small.

"Mr O'Brien stated to the Prime Minister about Digicel's commitment to Vanuatu and Digicel's continued investment in telecommunications and ICT in the country, to drive further economic growth and to help the government achieve its goals.

"The Chairman also shared details of the Digicel Foundation's work with the Prime Minister and discussed support for specific Community projects in Vanuatu."

She said plans for initiatives will be finalised in the coming months.
